WILCOX & GIBBS SEWING MACHINE.

We would call attention to the following facts in connection with this Machine, which renders it superior to any other in use:

It forms a flat elastic seam which will not rip in wear;
It is entirely noiseless;
A patented device prevents its being turned backward;
The needle cannot be set wrong;
Can be used successfully without other instructions than accompany the Machine;
It received the Gold Medal of the American Institute in 1863. For particulars, enquire of

A SENSIBLE "SOUTHERN VIEW."—The most rational and statesmanlike editorial we have seen in any Southern paper since the opening of the new era, is the following, from a paper started in Jacksonville, Florida:

The rebellion is subdued and the war ended; slavery has passed away, and can never, in any form, be revived; peace and good will should be the mission of every individual member of society; State sovereignty and the right of secession and nullification are, even in the South, exploded dogmas; the African race is not to be expatriated; the general Government and all its authority should be heartily sustained; official corruption exposed; rebels amnestied or pardoned are rebels no more, but citizens of the United States, and entitled to all property, civil and political rights; imprisonment and the confiscation of property should take place only in aggravated cases; the prosperity of the State depends upon the speedy and earnest inauguration of free labor; the law should give no one class an advantage over another; the freedmen are citizens of the United States and a part of the body politic; their elevation is essential to the peace and welfare of the State; facilities for general education should be secured by State legislation; the State Government, to be formed, should harmonize in spirit with the General Government; and immigration to Florida should be encouraged. The question of extending the elective franchise to the colored people, and many others, are open for discussion, and we solicit the views of the best thinkers in the State. Our own will be forthcoming in due time. War, destiny, or Providence, has irrevocably adjudged that the place of Florida is in the Union, and it is for her interest that perfect unity of action exist between her and the General Government.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A POLITICAL CHURCH?—The Pastoral Address of the Southern Methodist Bishops, which we published in full last week, charges among the rest that the Methodist Episcopal Church has "incorporated political tests" into its statements of belief. "They teach," say these Bishops, speaking of the Methodists of the loyal States, "for doctrine the commandments of men. They preach another gospel. They have incorporated social dogmas and political tests into their church creeds." These charges come with very bad grace from the heads of a church whose preachers were among the most active instigators of the late civil war. The rebellion was, in no place of public assemblage, more earnestly upheld than in Southern Methodist conference rooms and in Southern churches. The Nashville publishing house was used for the storage of rebel arms. Every Southern Methodist paper, with the single exception of the North Carolina Advocate, was an accomplice in the conspiracy to destroy the Union. In short, Southern Methodism was the head and front of the rebellion; blessing it, praying for it, fighting for it; bound up in its fortunes, part and parcel of it by every conceivable tie that could hold the church and the people together, and yet these Southern Bishops, who have been steeped to the lips in treason, have the effrontery to tell us that our Church is political, and that theirs is free from the spirit of politics.—New York Methodist.

JENKINS ON GENERAL HOOKER.—The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Commercial relates a very new bit of gossip concerning the lady whom General Hooker has just married. The writer observes:

A topic in high military and social circles is the marriage of Major General Hooker to Miss Olivia Groesbeck of Cincinnati, sister of Hon. William S. Groesbeck, formerly Representative in Congress from that city. This is not the lady of the same name who was selected to lead off the dancing at the grand ball given to the Prince of Wales in 1860, as the partner of His Royal Highness. But she is a woman of noble beauty and address—quite as likely to make a lasting impression of personal loveliness and grace as her younger relative. Some years ago she visited Europe, and was in London a while. Of the impression she left there, one little story tells the tale. An admirer of the Duke of Wellington sent him some cases of Longworth's sparkling catawba. He wished to know where so delicious a wine was made. "In Cincinnati, my Lord Duke," was the reply. "Cincinnati?" rejoined the hero of Waterloo; "ah that's the place Miss Groesbeck came from." Thus it is obvious that Major General Hooker is not the first hero whom the belle of Ohio has captivated.

THE REBEL GENERAL PILLOW.—According to the Nashville Union the rebel General Pillow has been pardoned, has bidden a final farewell to slavery, and set about the work of retrieving his fortunes in the most sensible manner. He owns a large cotton plantation in Arkansas, which since the emancipation proclamation has remained uncultivated. He has resumed possession of it, and the Union says:

He proposes, with the aid of Eastern capitalists, to rebuild the residences, gin-houses, barns, negro quarters, fences, etc., on his plantation, to restock it with agricultural implements, horses, cattle, hogs, etc., and to invite his former slaves to return and work for him, giving them good wages. In addition, he will give employment to such other freedmen as he may need. It is his intention to provide for his laborers liberally—furnishing them with good quarters and food, schools for their children, and churches for all. He will go into this good work with all the energy of his nature—and there are few more enterprising and intelligent men in the country—and no effort will be spared to make it successful. His experiment is a very important one, and will be watched with unflagging interest North and South.

BOOKS.—More than teeth and horns, and strength and swiftness, as instruments of defense and activity, are books to man. But man does not employ them simply as intellectual aids to his action and enjoyment in the world of the senses. A book may be a tool box and an armory for outer work and warfare. But man has an inner world of thought and sensibility. Books are guides that discover to us the extent and glory of the inner realm. They are doors of entrance to its palaces. They may themselves be the palaces and regions of this better world. It is man's distinction that when closing his eye on the world of the senses, the very things that in one way he shuts out, in another he shuts in. He has them now for inward beholding and examination; for the action of thought, conjecture and desire.—Thomas L. Lynch.

Sterne used to say: "The most accomplished way of using books is to serve them as some people do lords, learn their titles, and then brag of their acquaintance."

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

MONDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 4, 1865

Their Destiny in their own Hands

It rests entirely with the Southern people to determine what their political condition shall be both for the present and for years to come. It is for them to decide whether they will have military government or whether civil law shall again prevail. The Government of the United States has a purpose to accomplish in relation to the rebel States. That purpose is to revive loyalty, protect good citizens and restore the States to the exercise of their functions under the Constitution, exacting proper guarantees for their future subordination and good conduct. If those States prove by their conduct that they are right and true the disabilities under which they now labor need not continue a day; if they do not manifest a proper spirit of loyalty they cannot resume the rights they have forfeited. They must change their attitude of hostility for one of submission to the Government. Otherwise the next ten years will find them under the same restrictions as now.

The President told the Southern people that it would be utterly useless, an injurious folly in them to elect to Congress men who could not take the required oath, yet many such have been elected. He has told the colored race that this is their country as much as anybody's country, yet the Governors of Mississippi and South Carolina publish to their people and the world that the country is for one class only. Can these ex rebels hope to recover all they claim—civil government and the full rights of citizens—while at the same time they not only disregard but go contrary to the counsels of the President? Mr Johnson's term lasts three years yet, and we trust him so far as to believe that he will keep them waiting as long as he holds office, rather than permit them while still disloyal, to come into possession of full political power.

The Southern States, then, are solving for themselves the question as to what their political condition shall be. They are working out their own destiny. The time of their readmission to their rights is to be settled by themselves. Whether it is to come soon or late, their conduct is to determine.

GENERAL BANKS.—In his statesman-like speech recently delivered at Lawrence, Mass., General Banks said: "The President has given us to understand that he will follow the wishes of the people. He has never directly indicated that he intends to abandon his amnesty proclamation. I have more confidence in the President than many others, but I will abandon any man who may manifest a willingness to give political power into the hands of the leaders of the rebellion. I believe the great questions that underlie the future of the American Union are all embodied in this single inquiry: Who shall govern this country? Political power should be given to the masses of the Southern people who were not engaged of choice in this rebellion. All who have heretofore held control must be separated from those who have been obliged to acquiesce in this control. Mr. Lincoln's plan was to exclude from political power, the leaders of the rebellion, leaving it to the loyal people to organize institutions in harmony with the Constitution and the Union."

In the view of every fair-minded and loyal man, it seems to us that the method of re-construction as given by General Banks, must appear indispensable to the peace of the country and the perpetuity of the Government. The restoration of leading rebels to power in the South must result disastrously to the Union. Those persons only should be permitted to acquire control of State affairs, whose sympathies are with the loyal sentiments and free labor interests of the country.

OWYHEE TIN.—A few days ago it was stated that a tin ledge had been discovered on Jordan creek, Owyhee. This statement turns out, as we are informed, to be an error. No regularly defined ledge has been found. Considerable quantities of tin ore have been picked up in the bed of Jordan creek. It occurs commonly in rolled pieces among the sand and gravel and in concretionary forms resembling wood in their fibrous structure and concentric layers. From this circumstance it is called wood tin. Some of the specimens we have seen are of of a clear brown, others of a blackish brown color. This ore has been traced to the place of its formation, some distance up the stream. It is there found in small quantities in the granite, and exists as nodules in this rock. Tin ore is found similarly situated in several parts of New Hampshire, and we believe also in Massachusetts, but in no very great quantities. A ledge of this metal may yet be found at Owyhee, but it seems probable that the tin of that region will amount to nothing more than do the discoveries of the ore which were made at the East long ago, or those more recently made in California.

The Review is arguing (vo)luminously that "the Government of the United States is a compact between States." It strikes us we have seen something like this before. We can hardly believe the Review means to say that this very interesting question was never started prior to the publication of its essay, or that it is an idea wholly original with itself. We think it will find on reflection, that one John C. Calhoun promulgated this doctrine above thirty years ago, and that the "Confederate States of America," some five years since, attempted to put it into practical operation. So the Review will have to dismiss the idea that it is discussing a new and hitherto unargued subject. As it seems to be searching for new and interesting themes of discourse, we suggest that it institute an editorial inquiry as to whether old Cheops, the reputed builder of the pyramids was a mythical person or not. This would be as fresh a subject as the one it has just been considering.

KILLED.—A note from Captain Kelly, dated at Fort Vancouver, Dec 2d, informs us that James Alderson of Company C, 1st Oregon Cavalry, was killed by Indians while herding company horses in a canyon, a mile and a quarter from Camp Alvord, Nov. 6, 1865. The Indians took away all the horses,—sixteen of the best in the company. The man's body was found next day, naked but not mutilated. Lieut Chapman, with thirty two men, mostly mounted on mules, the others on foot, followed the Indian trail for five days, but failed to overtake them. James Alderson was one of the best men in the company. He has relatives near Jacksonville.

The late elections in the East resulted disastrously for the Statesman's "new conservative party." Had the "Democracy"—otherwise called the "new national organization"—succeeded there, the "new party" would now be in a much healthier condition here. Union men at the East didn't want a new conservative party, as the small fry politicians of Salem did. The Statesman and its friends being left in the lurch by the failure of the "new national organization," are now reduced to the necessity of going alone or of herding with the Copperheads. They seem to choose the latter alternative.

The Statesman heads an article with "What we lose by Indiscretion." This is an admirable subject for the politicians whose organ that paper is to reflect upon. Their "indiscretion" in trying to establish a "new national organization" has caused them to lose their character as members of the Union party.

The expenses of the Navy Department during the war footed up about seven and a half per cent of the national debt.

By Overland Telegraph.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO NOVEMBER 27.

The Detective Force

WASHINGTON, Nov 26.—The Government detective force is far from being disbanded, as was doubtless the intention of the President at one time, has an important and legitimate work and [illegible] in the chief cities of the Union and along the borders to detect and apprehend counterfeiters, smugglers and defrauders of the Internal Revenue.

The Forthcoming Message.

NEW YORK, Nov 26.—A Washington special says: The greater portion of the President's message has been placed in type to-day. It will be completed in ample time to be delivered to the [illegible] cities by special messenger, to be handed to the press on the day it is presented to Congress. The reports of the Secretaries of the Treasury and Interior are complete and being placed in type.

The Russian Telegraph.

NEW YORK, Nov 26.—P. L. Perry and Mr. [illegible] Collins, originators and prosecutors of Collins' Overland Russian American Telegraph line, had an interview with the President to-day. It is said the company desire the Government's service. They have already been furnished within a day or two, with a vessel belonging to the navy.

Work of the Rebel Cruisers.

NEW YORK, Nov 26.—A complete list of the rebel cruisers and the vessels destroyed by them has been prepared by secretary of the American Ship Masters Association and published. Altogether there were 20 of these pirate vessels whose course commenced in June 1861 by the sailing of the steamer Savannah from Charleston and ended 6th of the present month by the arrival of the Shenandoah at Liverpool. These cruisers destroyed and captured 275 merchant vessels, of the aggregate tonnage of nearly a million tons, which they either burned or sunk.

U. S. Court at Norfolk—Rebel Generals.

NEW YORK, Nov 26.—The Herald says: This session of the U S Circuit Court, with either Chief Justice Chase or Judge Underwood presiding, has been ordered to commence at Norfolk, Va., to-morrow. It is thought by some that the business will be the trial of Jeff Davis.

A letter from Georgia says, that the late rebel General Gordon is practising law in Atlanta, Ga. Wheeler is in the commission business at Augusta, Ga., General Gartrell is practising law in Atlanta, Ga., General Anderson is in the commission business at the same place, General Hardee is at Savannah, and Howell Cobb at Macon.

Public Lands in Minnesota.

NEW YORK, Nov 26.—The Herald's special dispatch says, that about the middle of last month Gov Miller of Minnesota made application to Secretary Harlan for an immediate survey and sale of the public lands in St Louis and Lake counties of that State. In response the Surveyor General of Minnesota reported by letter to the general land office, that the country abounds in mineral deposits of unbounded richness, among which are gold bearing quartz. Extensive ranges of iron have also been found in the State, of a quality equal to any other in the country. It is supposed the survey will be had immediately, and the lands placed in the market.

The Fenian "Government."

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The Fenian flag was raised yesterday over the Fenian head quarters, Union Square, in honor of the celebration of the evacuation of the city by the British in 1783. The head quarters are now under full headway. Business is being transacted with all the regularity of an organized government bureau. The Secretary of War, Secretary of the Treasury and other departments, are properly organized and at work. The building is one of the handsomest in the city. Its interior arrangements, furniture, carpeting, desks, etc., are of an elegant description. The edifice is leased at $1 500 per month.

North Carolina.

RALEIGH, November 26.—The Legislature meets to-morrow. Large numbers have arrived. Governor Holden is still confined to his bed from sickness. Messrs Poole, Reed, Holden and others are spoken of in connection with the Senatorship. It is thought the Constitutional Amendment will be ratified by the Legislature. Prominent gentlemen who had been to Washington, are not very hopeful as to the future of the State and reconstruction.

Reduction of Taxes Spoken of.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The Times special says a prominent member of the Senate Finance Company announces his intention to urge upon Congress a reduction of Government taxes to the amount of full one hundred millions of dollars. He alleges that the revenue after this reduction shall have been made, will be sufficient to pay the expenses of the Government, besides leaving a large sum to be applied to the public debt. In making up the statistics of the Treasury Department the fact is disclosed that in the fiscal years, ending June, respectively of 1862, 1863 and 1864, notwithstanding that we had 1,000,000 men in the field, and thus withdrawn from labor, we exported to foreign countries two and three-quarter times more ham and bacon than in 1858, 1859 and 1860.

Mexican News.

NEW YORK, Nov 26.—A letter from El Paso, October 6th, says: News has been received here that Gen Brancourt, commanding the French in Chihuahua, had issued orders to his command to make necessary preparations for the evacuation of the city, preparatory to concentrating his forces at Durank. The writer of the letter expected that the State of Chihuahua would be free from the French by the 1st of November. He says Juarez has received reports from the several commanders of the army of the Republic, that over 9,000 Mexicans will be summarily treated by the court martials of Maximilian, and condemned to death. The sentence in every case is speedily executed. There is no instance in which mercy is extended.

NEW ORLEANS, November 26.—The Matamoras Ranchero of the 10th says the firing on the steamer Antonio from the north bank on Tuesday was one of the most dastardly outrages ever perpetrated on the frontier. The Antonio, having on board a detachment of French marines and two field pieces, was forcing her way up the river under heavy fire from the enemy, when she grounded seven miles below the city, and while engaged with the enemy on the Mexican side, a furious fire at long range was opened on her from the neutral bank, which was effective, wounding two marines. The Liberals on the north bank were dressed in Federal uniforms. The French commander refused to return the fire from the Texas bank. The same paper says it appears to be the settled purpose of some men to bring on a war between the United States and Mexico. It says the outlaws on the American side are in force. It is there where they make their headquarters, receiving reports, issuing orders, enlisting recruits, etc. The Antonio was fired from on shore near where Cortinas had been camped.

The Ram Stonewall Again.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The World's special, speaking of the trip of the Stonewall for the edification of the Farragut-Craven (?) court martial, says that her speed was ten miles an hour, which is by no means her maximum speed. She seemed to be very formidable. Her ram projects 25 feet from the bow and her eight feet under water. After the trial the general impression seemed to be that Commodore Craven exercised some discretion in not attacking her. Had the Niagara's guns failed to make an impression on the four inch plating of the Stonewall, the result would probably have been the sinking of the Niagara by the latter's ram. The Stonewall is to be hauled into the stream and a gun of the Niagara's calibre to be fired at her at a distance approximating that between her and the Niagara at the time Commodore Craven declined to attack her.

The New York Collectorship.

NEW YORK, Nov 27.—The Herald's dispatch says a petition signed by many leading New York merchants and importers, recommending the appointment of Henry A. Smythe, of the Central National Bank, to the Collectorship, was, on Saturday, presented to the Secretary of the Treasury by a delegation in behalf the signers, and was by the Secretary referred to the President for consideration.

Another "Report" Spoiled.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The Herald's Charleston correspondent says: Brig. Gen. James C. Beecher, commanding the second sub district of South Carolina, writing from Greenville S. C., to the News of this city, emphatically denies that there is any truth in the report of negro insurrections or attempts at insurrection in Barnwell. The report grew out of the killing of a ruffian named McKew, a planter it is supposed, by a negro boy whom McKew had whipped and badly cut up with a knife.

The Reserve Corps Disbanding.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Nearly all the privates in the reserve corps have been ordered by the late order of the War Department to leave the service, and have been mustered out in large numbers. The officers, however, remain in service. Most of them are utterly incapacitated to pursue their former business. As has been found from official reports now coming to the Department and from other sources these officers remain in service and in order to obtain a place for them in the regular army, if it shall be determined to retain the veterans in that organization, an enabling act is proposed to be submitted to Congress, to be enacted into a law, which will provide for the admission of every veteran reserve officer, retaining their present grade and rank as near as can be upon a certificate from the board of examiners of their competency and fitness for the position.

It is understood the Secretary of War favors this plan.

Gov. Hamilton in his proclamation calling the Texas Convention says: All qualified voters having taken the amnesty oath or being pardoned, are eligible except those who [illegible] the oath was taken or they were pardoned and appointed to the election.

Gov. Parsons of Alabama recommends the passage of an act declaring that the freedmen shall have the same measure of protection now accorded to the white population.

Special Mail Agent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Phelps of Ohio, for twenty five years past in the United States Navy, was on Saturday appointed by the President general special agent for the Government to accompany the Pacific mail steamer under the contract entered into a few weeks ago, and look after the interests of the United States in the execution of the agreement between the mail company and the Government. Capt. Phelps will leave Boston December 6th for England, thence to China and return by the way of the Pacific.

Rebels in Brazil.

NEW YORK, Nov 26.—A letter from Rio Janeiro says: There is a strong emigration from the United States to Brazil. Nearly all are refugees from the late rebellious states.

The Herald's correspondent who recently visited Mount Cenis Tunnel says: The statements that work had been suspended at any time are untrue. The whole length of the tunnel will be 1? miles, of which more than [illegible] is completed.

It has been ordered at the Treasury Department that the bonds which enter into the purchase of mutilated national currency will not be allowed or received.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov 26.—The wharves and landing have been relinquished to the city authorities, the Government reserving one thousand feet for its own use.

Louisiana Affairs.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov 26.—The test oath has been argued before the District Court here for two days. Judge Durell intimated to-day that he considered the law unconstitutional.

A Monroe, Louisiana paper speaks encouragingly of the prospects of the cotton planting in that section. The planters are disposed to give the freedmen a fair chance.

The same paper says that a large number of emigrants from Alabama and contiguous States are going to Texas.

Letter from Salem.

SALEM, OREGON, December 1st, 1865.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

The loyal Union men in this community are well pleased with the spirit and temper of your editorials on the course the Statesman is taking on the issues of the day—truly, frankly, fearlessly spoken in language dignified and courteous at the same time. They were equally disgusted at the tone and spirit of the Statesman of this week, in reference to the OREGONIAN. That editorial of the Statesman was in low taste and worthy only of the columns of a Copperhead paper. It gave much offence in the better circles, and went far to prove the paper's fraternization with the company you are pleased to associate it with. The truth is the Review and the Statesman are very much alike in all their elements of character—tone, temper and spirit, and are unquestionably operating to the same end—that is, the formation of a third party, with an eye on the spoils. The true loyal men of Salem and Marion county are satisfied with the present Union party, its principles and platforms, antecedents and prospects, and will repudiate all efforts to disrupt it. On the old platform of the Chicago Convention we stand; on that platform we elected Abraham Lincoln; on that platform we flung the flag to the breeze far and wide; under it we rallied, fought and put down the rebellion. On its immortal principles "that all men are endowed with certain inalienable rights," we still rally under it in the work of reconstruction, and shall still fling the flag of the same identical platform to the breeze till every traitor throughout the land shall be converted by the logic of inexorable events, and every freedman guaranteed in natural, religious and civil rights. And any man or combination of men in Oregon who may insidiously endeavor to change, alter or modify the principles of the great Union party, at this day will find that they have made a great mistake. They will find themselves "left out in the wet"—an Oregon wet at that, for the true men of the State see that there is too much at stake at this important juncture to allow selfish men, for monetary considerations, to distract and divide the party, and then hand the administration of the State into the hands of rebels and their allies. Not a particle of it! Good bye Statesman, and good bye every other paper in Oregon first! Furthermore the time has come in this State when our leading newspapers, and leading men must stand 'fair and square' to the enemy. Men, outspoken and tried in loyalty, are the men we want, and the men we will have. Measures in accordance with the policy of the General Government, and up to the demands of the age, are the measures we ask, and intend to inaugurate. Oregon has been beset with demagogues and office seekers whose eyes were on the "loaves and fishes" long enough. These cliques and parties, and combinations of men, to make money, have too long oppressed our young State. The people begin to feel it in good earnest, and will see how much longer our grievances go unredressed. After all the past, to think of forming another new party, and handing us soul and body into its mill to be ground another series of years as the old—but now defunct—democratic party used to grind us, is out of the question. "We want no change—no remodelling of politics in Oregon." If the Statesman and their Copperhead allies want to "remodel," let them "remodel" away till doomsday, but the truly loyal men of Oregon will spit on every proposition of that kind.

LOCAL NEWS.

The members of the Corps Legislatif are looked for now every day. Everybody is on the qui vive to make a dollar in making them comfortable here. Till then everything in Salem is about like Italy is a few days before an eruption of Vesuvius. If we are not all swallowed up in the overflow you will hear from us again.

The Review indulged last week in a little of its usual abuse of good men, whereupon the following conversation took place between one of the persons concerned and "a citizen of African descent." "Darkey," said the man, "I will give you a pair of boots if you will go and kick that fellow out of town,"—having reference to the editor of that disgraceful sheet. "Dat would lower dis chile too much," said darkey, "hum too mean."

The Masons and Odd Fellows are looking forward to their anniversaries with much interest, and our Sabbath School children are expecting more Christmas trees than—they will be likely to get. Our ladies, "bless 'em," are "spreading themselves" in the way of church suppers. Committees of "seventy"—that was the number of disciples that Christ sent out, I believe—are out, and will report soon. Now and then they rake up a bit of slander as they peregrinate, and you had better believe "the hair flies," till the victim is eat up!

But, the called session! send it up!

Yours, for all the family,

ONE OF THE SMITHS.

"Democratic" journals are already speaking of Gen. Lee as their next candidate for the Presidency. Certainly he is entitled to the honor at their hands, as no other "Democrat" in the United States can show so unimpeachable a party record as he.

The Advertiser says that ten or twelve ship carpenters left Umatilla on Saturday last to commence work on the new steamer to be built on Coeur d'Alene lake. It is intended to have the boat running as early as the first of April.

Attention Portland Light Artillery.—Drill this (Monday) evening at 7 o'clock. By order of the Captain. R. BARBER, O. S.

The Question.—Can 4,000,000 of the people raised as they have been with all the prejudice of the whites against them take their places in the community and be made to work harmoniously and congruously in our system? This is the question to be determined. Let us make the experiment, and make it in good faith.—President Johnson.

The Statesman has already decided this question as follows:

"There is an insurmountable objection to the exercise of the right of (negro) suffrage in this government. Those who favor it are trying to do what God and nature forbid. The two races cannot live harmoniously together."

That being the case, President Johnson is very unwise, for he says:

"I trust the system can be made to work harmoniously and that it will not be necessary to separate the races."

Does the Statesman still agree with the President in everything?

Storm and Fire at Port Angeles.—On Saturday last Port Angeles was visited by a severe storm from the eastward, accompanied with wind. It was manifestly the effect of a storm above where it must have been blowing heavily the night previous.

The new wharf of Mr. Allingham was swept away, nothing being left of it but one of the outer piers. Some of the floating timbers from the wharf struck the jetty of the Custom House and made a breach through it.

Frank Tucker narrowly escaped drowning by the upsetting of the Custom House boat in the surf, which fell over him.

The English bark, which sailed from Port Angeles on Tuesday last, was the same evening hove on her beam ends in a squall off Cape Flattery.

On Wednesday evening 22d, the house of Mr. Victor Smith was destroyed by fire. The inmates barely escaped with their lives, saving nothing but their clothes. Not a vestige of the house remained the next morning, it being entirely reduced to ashes.—Seattle Gazette, Nov. 25th.

Longfellow, if we may credit a London contemporary, is writing a story in verse, the incidents of which are drawn from the late civil war. "The measure," adds the writer, "is chiefly hexameter, and the poem will possess some of the characteristics of Evangeline."

In eight months there have been one hundred and twenty eight railroad accidents, by which two hundred and sixty-six persons have been killed, and one thousand one hundred and nine wounded.

Not a Subject of Doubt.—The voice of experience is the voice of wisdom. Thousands attest the truth of this saying, after using Nowell's Pulmonary Syrup, by the advice of friends, that had been restored to health and usefulness by means of this invaluable remedy for all Pulmonary affections. Why waste precious moments when it is known that certain relief is within your reach? Try the Syrup and be convinced.

North Carolina Convention

(Correspondence New York Herald)

RALEIGH, Oct 17 1865

As the first business of the morning session Judge Donnell, from the Standing Committee on [illegible], submitted a lengthy report of [illegible] ordinances as proper to be first considered by the Convention during the present session. Among them were the ordinances declaring what laws are in force, providing for payment of the old State debt, vacating the offices of judges, &c., who have taken any oath inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States, creating a commission to report to the State Legislature a code of laws for freedmen, enforcing the claims of the State to property claimed by the State, raising a revenue for the support of the State Government, and resolutions of thanks to President Johnson and Governor Holden, inquiring in relation to the details of the State debt, soliciting of the President of the United States a total amnesty for all the people of North Carolina, asking that persons under arrest by the military may be handed over to the civil authorities, and for transmission to the President of the United States of copies of the Bill of Rights, the State Constitution and amendments, and the ordinances relating to secession and slavery passed by the Convention.

The report was agreed to, and the latter resolutions at once taken up and passed.

PRESERVATION OF LAW AND ORDER.

Judge Howard from a committee on that subject, reported an ordinance requiring the Sheriffs to convene the magistrates of the several counties and with them to perfect an enrollment in each district of all able bodied white citizens between the ages of eighteen and thirty five, unmarried as a first class, and between eighteen and forty five, married as a second class, from which to raise a State police guard for the preservation of law and order, to act when called upon to do so as aids to the local police and civil officers until the State militia shall be organized.

Judge Howard and General Dockery advocated the ordinance, stating that it was absolutely needed in some localities to protect life and property and preserve the peace of the State. The rules were suspended, and the ordinance made the special order for eleven o clock to morrow.

VOTES OF UNION SOLDIERS.

A motion was made by Mr Rumley to take up and pass the ordinance not included in the report of the committee, providing that citizens who had served as soldiers in the United States army, and had now returned to their homes may vote in the approaching election without taking the oath of allegiance or paying poll tax. The committee, however, had concluded that all such citizens were entitled so to vote without any new legislation, under the constitution of the State, and so the House refused to consider the ordinance.

NON-LIABILITY FOR ACTS DONE UNDER THE CONFEDERACY.

The ordinance declaring what laws are in force and for other purposes, being a sort of omnibus bill, was then taken up, and a spirited debate sprang up upon a provision holding exempt from responsibility by indictment or civil action any officer, soldier, or other person who had at any time been engaged in the discharge of a duty under and in accordance with any act of the Confederate Congress, or of the State of North Carolina, during the rebellion, whether such laws had legal and binding force or not.

Mr. Tod R. Caldwell offered an amendment which sought to allow persons who had suffered in their persons or their property, by trespass or violence, their remedy in a civil action.

A UNION OFFICER SPEAKS HIS MIND.

Captain Bryan, an officer of the Federal army, desired to know what the Convention proposed to do by this ordinance. He was not a lawyer or a speaker, but a plain working man, and there might be something in the law he held in his hand that he couldn't see, and that other gentlemen could see. But to him it looked like a proposition to say that secession, which had been declared illegal, was legal after all, and that those who had committed outrages under secession were to be held harmless. Now, he happened to have had five cousins hanged or shot by rebel ruffians, who professed to act under orders and hunted them down and killed them like dogs, because they would not go into the rebel army.

WHERE JEFF DAVIS GOT HIS ORDERS.

If men who only acted under orders were not to be held responsible for hanging Union men and burning their houses, why they would all get off, because everybody would say he had orders to hunt the men and assault their wives and children. He believed Jeff Davis acted under orders for he thought he got his orders originally from the devil.

A ONE-HORSE MACHINE.

When Jeff. Davis had the power no Union man could get any fair play. The rebels did as they pleased, and no one cared how many Union men they killed off. It was all on one side, but then Jeff. Davis' machine was always a one horse machine. He never gave a Union man a show. They were all called tories during the war and in the western part of the State, where he lived they were hunted like dogs. To avoid fighting for secession several went to the federal army. He had told them that if ever he fought at all he would fight on the Union side, and when conscription came he went over and fought in the federal army, and fought as well as he knew how.

THE CONVENTION HAD BETTER GO HOME.

He had seen deviltment enough under the confederacy, and he wouldn't go for giving Union men no show for getting square with the men who committed outrages upon them. Why, the old men and women had been locked up in jail, and maltreated, for feeding their own sons when they were hiding from conscription. If the Convention was going to say "It's all right, boys, everything you've done is all right," and going to pass this ordinance, it would be time to adjourn and go home, or they'd pass another secession ordinance soon, and be out of the Union again, the first they knew.

DANGER OF RETALIATION.

He could only tell them that in his part of the State, if men were denied their rights under the law against these men, they would retaliate. He was in favor of law, and it was as much as he could do already to [illegible] men against retaliation. He did not care, so far as he was himself [illegible] concerned, although at one time he had been hunted and orders were out to kill him. A reward of two thousand dollars was offered "by orders" for his head, and he didn't think that much of a reward either, as it was Confederate money.

COULDN'T SEE DIXIE.

It might be his ignorance that prevented him from seeing the propriety of letting men off free who had committed murder on Union men. He admitted that he was an ignorant man as compared with the lawyers and judges around him, but he wanted to tell them that, ignorant as he was, he couldn't see Dixie in this war. He had been told what a glorious future there was for the South, and what a heap of laurels he might win if he went into the war, but he couldn't see it, and he didn't go in. If this was ignorance, it looked like a pretty good sort of ignorance just about these days.

CARRYING WATER ON BOTH SHOULDERS.

There were a good many men here who had been talking a great deal about their Union principles and all that for the last two weeks, but he could tell them there were mighty few of them who hadn't carried water on both shoulders during the war.

Lieutenant Colonel Kennedy (rebel army) inquired if the gentleman from Wilkes thought that every soldier in the rebel army who had killed a man should be hung? If so, among the respectable body of lawyers he should himself desire at once to engage a counsel.

"LONG TAW AND SHORT TAW."

Captain Bryan did not think any person would understand him as favoring that. A great many Union men had been conscripted and obliged to fight and kill men when they got out war. His allusions were to the Home Guard who hunted men out and murdered them. There were many good Union men on the Home Guard, but you could not get such a one to kill a neighbor. It needed a rebel and traitor at heart to do that. He supposed he had killed men himself in battle, but he meant fighting and had shot at rebels at long taw and at short taw, and no doubt had hit many of them.

Colonel Kennedy—I am satisfied with the gentleman's explanation.

Captain Bryan—Well, I am glad the gentleman is satisfied, but if he wants to ask me anything else let him fire away.

After further debate by Mr Poole of Bertie, Mr A. R. Moore and others an amendment was offered by Mr Starbuck providing that any person who had exceeded his duty in executing any law of the Confederate Congress or the State of North Carolina during the rebellion should be liable to indictment and to civil action, and providing that no "orders" from any superior officer unless such orders were based upon and in accordance with the laws of the Confederacy or the State, should be held in justification of any illegal act.

Mr Moore contended that the ordinance did in fact, make it so very provisions, and that the amendment were only [illegible] the Convention was disposed to adopt them and they were carried. The ordinance then passed.

The Convention will hold an evening session today, and the committee has reported in favor of a final adjournment on Thursday. They propose sitting through Wednesday night to finish up their business.

The Two Cabinets

The following account of the abilities and services of the men who have held places in the Cabinet since the first inauguration of President Lincoln is taken from the late Auburn speech of Mr Seward. Of course the distinguished Secretary omitted to speak of himself while talking about his fellow members:

The present and the last administration are inseparably allied. Their work is now otherwise completely done or its end is near at hand. The heads of departments in those allied administrations are now separable without injury to the national safety and welfare. Each is entitled to his own judgment and each must be content to bear his distinct responsibility. We have had three Secretaries of the Treasury. I believe that the financial system under which the nation has been carried through greater difficulties than any other country ever encountered was not only wisely projected and efficiently organized by Mr Chase, but was the only one which under the then existing circumstances, could have been successful. [Applause.] There has been since no departure from that plan, nor any relaxation in pursuing it by either his immediate successor Mr Fessenden, or by Mr McCulloch, the present incumbent. [Renewed applause.] Intricate financial questions must continue to present themselves from time to time, until we shall have turned the outgoing tide of debt, and begun to experience the incoming flow of surplus revenue. For myself, I can safely leave them to the care of the Secretary of the Treasury. [Applause.] We have had two Secretaries of War, Mr Cameron and Mr Stanton. The period of the first was short; that of the last has been long. Of Mr Cameron I bear witness that he was in all things honest, earnest, zealous and patriotic. Of Mr Stanton, I am to speak in even more exalted praise. [Applause.] My acquaintance with him began amid the deep and overwhelming solicitude which filled what may be justly called an interregnum which occurred between the election of Abraham Lincoln to the Presidency in November 1860 and his inauguration, amid the dangers of revolution, siege and assassination in March 1861, and while Edwin M. Stanton was an acting member of the waning administration of James Buchanan. From that time, through all the period which elapsed until April, 1865, when the siege of the capital was raised and the fearful tragedy of the country was closed with the assassination of the Chief Magistrate who had saved it, I hourly saw and closely observed, by night and by day, the Secretary of War. I saw him organize and conduct a war of pure repression, greater than any war which mankind had before experienced. In all that time I saw no great or serious error committed. I saw, as you have all seen, the greatest military results achieved—results which the whole world regarded as impossible. There is not one of those results that is not more or less directly due to the tireless invention, sagacious preparation, and indomitable perseverance and energy of the Secretary of War. [Applause.] I have never known him to express or even betray a thought in regard to our country which was not divine. What remains to be done, by exhibiting military force, in bringing the insurrectionary States out from anarchy into a condition of internal peace and in operation with the Government may be safely trusted to him. I am equally satisfied with the naval administration of Mr Welles, and yet I am bound to acknowledge that during the whole period of this service the navy has practically enjoyed the administration of two sagacious and effective chiefs. The Secretary of the Navy will himself, I am sure, approve and thank me for this tribute to his assistant Capt Fox. The Department has achieved glory enough to divide between them. I apprehend, neither now nor in any near future, any danger of maritime collision or conflict, but I think the maintenance of naval preparation equally and advantageous, both at home and abroad, with regard to questions which, without that precaution, might possibly arise. I am content to leave the responsibility of this case with Mr. Welles. [Applause.] We have had three Secretaries of the Interior, or Home Department—Mr. Smith, Mr Usher and Mr Harlan. Amid the tumults of war and the terror inspired by foreign conspiracies, the operations of the Home Department have all the while been carried on without arresting attention or even obtaining observation. It might be sufficient praise to say of its chiefs that now, when the time for scrutiny has come, those unobserved operations are found to have been faultless. But this is not all. A thousand, five thousand years hence, men will inquire when and by whom was projected and instituted the steam over land connection, which during all the intervening period, will be seen to have indissolubly bound the distant coasts of the Pacific to the shores of the Atlantic ocean. The answer will be, it was projected and instituted by the Secretaries of the Interior during the administration of Abraham Lincoln. [Applause.] We have had two Postmaster Generals. No more prudent or efficient one than Montgomery Blair has ever presided in that department. [Applause.] In his successor, Mr Dennison, we find a practiced statesman, who under the improved circumstances of our national condition, is giving us special and peculiar cause for satisfaction. He is promptly restoring the transportation of mails throughout the late theatre of war, and in that way performing an eminent part in the reconciliation of the American people. Watchful of the interests of external as well as internal commerce, he has brought into action a new and direct postal line with Brazil, and thus has introduced us to more intimate intercourse with the States of South America. A year hence we shall see him extending commercial, political and friendly connection to the islands of the Pacific and the great continents that lie beyond it. [Renewed applause.] I wish you all could understand Mr Speed, the Attorney-General, as I do. I do not know whether he is to be more admired for varied and accurate learning or for what seems to be an intuitive faculty for moral philosophy. Only the delicate nervous system, which we all enjoy, but so seldom appreciate, seems to me to furnish a parallel for his quick sensibilities in the discovery and appreciation of truth. [Applause.] Firmer than most men in his convictions and braver in his hopes of the progress of humanity, he is nevertheless temperate, thoughtful and wise in the conduct of administration. These are they who were or are the counselors and agents of the President of the United States during the eventful period through which we have passed. That they have always agreed from the first in deciding the momentous questions with which they were engaged is not asserted. A Cabinet which should agree at once on every such question would be no better or safer than one counselor. Our republican system, and the political system of every free country, requires, if not a "multitude of counselors," at least an aggregation and diverseness of counselors. But this I do not maintain and confidently proclaim, that every important decision of the Administration has been wise. I maintain with equal firmness and declare with still greater pleasure, the opinion that no council of government ever existed in a revolutionary period in any nation which was either more harmonious or more loyal to each other, their chief and to their country. [Applause.] Had this council been at any time less harmonious or less loyal I should then have feared the downfall of the Republic. Happily, I need not enter the field to assign honors to our military and naval chiefs. Their achievements while they have excited the admiration, and won the affectionate gratitude of all our countrymen have already become a grand theme of universal history.

SANGUINARY CHARACTER OF THE SOUTH AMERICAN WAR.—The New York Herald gives details of the battle of Yatey, between the Paraguayans and Brazilians, showing the sanguinary character which the struggle is likely to assume. On the 17th of August the allied forces, 9,000 strong, under Gens. Flores and Paunero encountered 2,400 Paraguayans under Gen. Duarte on the right bank of the Uruguay river. The Paraguayans were unprovided with artillery, and outnumbered two to one. A summons was sent them to surrender, but they replied by shooting the messenger. For one hour and a half the Paraguayans met the fierce assaults of the allies with a desperate resistance, neither asking nor receiving quarter, which their assailants were little disposed to accord them. At the end of that time they broke and fled to the river, pursued by 1,000 cavalry. Here a slaughter took place, which one of the victorious Generals characterized as a regular butchery. Scarcely one of the defeated army escaped. They left 1,700 dead on the field and only 300 wounded, a conclusive proof of the fearful nature of the struggle. Their leader Duarte and 1,200 of his troops fell into the hands of the Brazilians, and all their stores were captured. The allies stated their loss at 250 killed and wounded. Another detachment of Paraguayans, 7,000 strong, on the other side of the river, was prevented by the Brazilian gunboats from reinforcing Duarte, and at the latest advices they were securely hemmed in at Uruguayana, by an immensely superior force. As a set off against these successes, an engagement is reported between the Paraguayan batteries and the Brazilian fleet in [illegible] which the latter was [illegible] prevent the return of the fleet. In running past those batteries the fleet suffered much damage.

SAINTS REST (wich is in the State uv Noo Jersey) October 10, 1865.

Last nite, weary and disgusted with readin' ole Eshun returns I picked up a volume of Campbell's Poems and red that splendid poem, The Last Man. Campbell's poem, thet aint no doubt uv it. Ef my Dimocratic frends want to catch it I can whip him in the sub'ime. But on the pathetic, Kirke White's Hall, Ridge bein ez my superior. Be that ez it may, the poem made an impression on my mind, which is proof that ther is suthin in to it, and my mind waz a dwellin' on it ez I sunk into slumber.

Ez yoosual I had a dreme, sich a dreme ez may I never hev agin.

Methort the epidemic which is now devastatin Europe, had struck Noo York. In a short time it struck down all classes. The proud Caucashen, the lowly nigger, the noble red man uv the forest and the almond eyed Chinese, all, all fell afore the ruthless destroyer. But at last it abated so far ez the nigger waz concerned. The white man waz spared, so waz the Injun, and the Chinese, but, among the Afrikins, it raged with redoubled fury. O, it wuz crushin'! The planter I hed abroad, and lo! the stalwart field hand which wuz worth $1,000 wuz a cold corpse, and the field wuz unplowed. Agin he looked, and alas! O brawny wench which allus bore a pickaninny wich wuz worth $200 ez soon ez weaned, wunst a year, and by a little extra whippin' did a full year's work, wuz prostrate in the cold embrace uv death. Agin he looked and wo is him! the octoroon for which he paid $2,000, and whose gal he was he could sell in Noo Orleans ez soon ez they wuz fit for $5,000, on akkount uv the hot blood in their veins, wuz torn from his grasp by the strong hand uv disease, and wuzn't worth a copper for any purpose.

The Democracy bekum alarmed. The indefatigable leaders whispered, "The nigger is' takin away! Ef sich he bekum extinck!" Whereupon a consultation uv the head men wuz held. In view of the crisis, a pair—wun male and wun female wuz selected and examined by a committee uv expert examiners in the life insurance companies. They wuz pronounced perfeck specimens—entirely sound and free from disease. These two wuz locked up in a room, in a healthy location and twenty four uv the most eminent physicians uv the country wuz detailed—one to stay with them wun hour uv each day, that in case the disease struck 'em, the remedies might be to wunst applied, that, from these two, the race might be propagated, and the capstyle of the party be preserved.

But all to no purpose. The last nigger in the Yoonited States perished, and, finally, and finally these two struck, and, notwithstandin the precautions adopted, they, too, died!

There wuz a season Nachor sympathyzed with the party in its affliction. The heavens was clothed with leaden colored clouds, athort which, over and anon, flashed gleams uv lurid lite. Low voiced thunder muttered ominously, and birds and beasts ran howlin o'er the leola. Dray horses fel dead upon the stony streets, and wild beasts rushed frantically from their coverts and snapped ferociously madly at whatever came in their way.

The last uv the Afrikins were laying prostrate in the hall. Fernandywood entered, and, ez he seed em, he busted into tears. "Farewell," gushed he "a long farewell, just as a cussed race! You wuz our tower uv strength, you wuz our corner stun, on you we bilded! Hatred uv you give me the Irish vote in Noo York. O, how cheerin' it wuz to see them lambs bust yer heads, and innocently hang you up to lamp posts! But you'm gone—you'm gone—and hentzith life's blank to me. Farewell vain world!—for what is life without a nigger!" and seezin a jack knife, he saw stickin out uv the nigger's pocket, he stuck it into his stummick, and fallin' across the deceased Afrikins, expired peacefully.

Franklin Peerce approached. "Alas! and art thou gone? Too true, thou art! In life thou wurt lovely! 'Twas thou alone, that made me President, and thy wully hed wuz my steppin stun to place and power! Thou wast my right bower, my left hand and ace! Ef I was a Democratic Sampson, thou wast the hair wich the Delilar, Death, hez sheered off. Fernandy, I kum! I kum!" and seezin the jack-knife from his hand, he plunged it into his bowels, fallin across Fernandy.

Vullandygum approached. "I, too, must say farewell," said he kissin their cold features, "for thou wast my anker. Thou, 'twast who made me Congressman—thou exiled me, and hate uv the gave me $30,000 in ten cent pieces when I wuz in Canady. Do I want to go to Congress agin? No! no! no! I should be dum, for the mainspring uv my eloquence lies here!" and, takin the jack knife, he immersed it in his bowels, and fell acrosst Peerce.

Old James Bookannon and Voorhees, and Brite and Florence, and in fact, all the leaders uv the party, North, to the number uv suthin over 200, kum up, and, each makin a short orashun stuck theirselves with the jack knife, fallin across each other, as cord wood is piled. Finally, I felt it a duty I owed to the party to foller suit. Seezin the jack knife, I made my orashun (wich was techin'!) and was about to sever my intestines, when I seed a quart bottle stickin out uv the nigger's pockit. Drawin it fth, I pulled the cork. Glory! it was whiskey! Two swigs and it wuz gone—the room spun round, and I fell senseless on the top uv the pile uv ded Democrats.

Just then Horris Greely cum in. "Behold Democracy," said he, "ez it wuz in the beginnin, so it is in the endin. Nigger, at the bottom, whisky at the top and a stink in the middle," and, hold in his nose, he shambled out of the room.

I woke in a cold sweat, happy to find that it wuz only a dream, that the nigger still lived in all his carsitood, and that we still hed suthin to go on.

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction, even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

THIS ASTONISHING SUCCESS WHICH HAS AT tended this invaluable medicine in all cases where it has been used, has induced us to offer it to the public. No language can convey an adequate idea of the immediate and almost miraculous change which it occasions in the debilitated and shattered system. In fact, it stands unrivalled as a remedy for the permanent cure of the maladies above mentioned such as

DIABETES, IMPOTENCY, LOSS OF MUSCULAR ENERGY,
PHYSICAL PROSTRATION,
INDIGESTION,
SEMINAL WEAKNESS,
